MORE than 300 runners turned up to take part in the Peace Mile Run at Oxford's Cottesloe Park on Friday.

Runners flocked from France, Germany, North America, Japan and Australia to mark the first peace mile run to be held in Oxford.

Organiser Anita Morris, from Kennington, Oxford, said: "The peace mile run was organised by the Sri Chinmoy Athletic school.

"Sri Chinmoy works for peace at the United Nations Headquarters in New York. It's a non-political and non-denominational organisation. But all the runners have one thing in common. They want to promote peace throughout the world."
